

Your child is being attacked online

A parent's first reaction decides whether the child tells the whole story or keeps it hidden for months.

1 Do not take the phone away

The child reads it as punishment for telling the truth.

2 Listen without judging

No questions about why they went there or sent that photo.

3 Secure the evidence

Screenshots with the address, the date and the account name.

4 Report it

To the service and, if it involves classmates, to the school.

5 Ask for help

Threats, blackmail and leaked personal data are matters for the police.

Our foundation runs consultations for parents and helps with removing harmful content.
